6/24/77

Dear Jim,

There has been no word from the Archives, which I guess should not surprise me.

They are one of the defendants in another action;
They don't like what I've done to them;
They are about two months behind now in a large job they were to have had ready two weeks ago.

To now it has caused no real problem because I've not been able to get to it for several reasons but I want to plan ahead. And be ready. And complete and accurate.

I do not think the trip itself tired me. Never has in the past. But when I got home I was and I remained exhausted. The first night the left leg gave me trouble. That passed off in a day. Two days later again and it has not passed off. I'm uneasy when anything troubles either leg with the extensive vascular damage to both. I was limping until today. Now I'm limping only part time. It eased off enough yesterday for me to walk farthur than the 500 feet to the end of the lane and back. Tonight I did a half-hour of pushing a hand mower. If we have no rain tonight or tomorrow after the dew is off I'll see if I'm up to the riding mower. But I've not been with it. My speed has been going over documents that accumulated. About a thousand more tomorrow then I have to get ready to be in court next Thursday. After that I may have enough time before the next batch of FBI documents to get a rough draft down.

In order to record your present doubts correctly I'd like to be able to refer to both your contemporaneous notes and the news story of the 13 that backs up your recollection of calling the FBI, not them calling you.

Eventually I'll get the other records from the Archives. Then I'll send these copies, or the ones not enclosed. And any others there may be.

By now the books should have reached you and Mary. If they do not please let me know. I insured both packages.

All of you people were wonderful. I sure appreciate it and recall it with much pleasure.

Thanks again and best to everyone.

Sincerely,